

CONVOCATION POSTGRADUATE RESEARCH TRAVEL AWARDS INFORMATION SHEET

BACKGROUND

The purpose of these awards is to enable postgraduate research students to enhance their research through travel in Australia or overseas.

The Awards were established to mark the 75th Anniversary of the University, and have since been supported by the generous donations of graduates, with assistance from the Deputy Vice-Chancellor (Research) and the Postgraduate Students' Association. Current awards include the Geoffrey Kennedy Postgraduate Research Travel Award, the Alexander K. Cohen Postgraduate Research Travel Award, the Ken and Julie Michael Postgraduate Research Travel Award, the Sue Baker Postgraduate Research Travel Award, two Postgraduate Students' Association Awards and the Barry Marshall and Robin Warren Postgraduate Research Travel Award and the Michael Chaney Postgraduate Research Travel Award. The remaining awards will be known as the Convocation Postgraduate Research Travel Awards.

Convocation will provide awards, each worth $3000. The Geoffrey Kennedy Postgraduate Research Travel Award, the Alexander K. Cohen Postgraduate Research Travel Award, the Ken and Julie Michael Postgraduate Research Travel Award, the Sue Baker Postgraduate Research Travel Award, 2 Postgraduate Students Association Awards and the Barry Marshall and Robin Warren Postgraduate Research Travel Award will be awarded to the 7 top-ranked applicants in the competitive selection process

Awards are available to students who have enrolled in a Higher Degree by Research for at least six months, planned travel prior to completion of their dissertation and have had their Research Proposal approved by the Board of the Graduate Research School. Awards are normally granted to students in the middle years of their candidature who can demonstrate that the travel will lead to new developments in the research or exploration of previously unexpected avenues. Preference may be given to applicants who intend to undertake a variety of activities during the proposed travel, such as conference attendance and visiting other institutions to bring back new skills or techniques to UWA.
